The hotel's history dates back to the late 19th century, when it was built as a luxury resort for wealthy travelers. However, tragedy struck early on when a young woman named Mary died by suicide in one of the hotel rooms. Her ghost is said to haunt the hotel to this day,徘徊在房间里，哭泣着。

Over the years, the hotel has witnessed numerous other tragic events, including several murders. In 1931, a young couple was found dead in one of the rooms, the victim of an apparent double murder. Their ghosts are said to haunt the hotel, reenacting the night of their deaths.

In addition to these tragic events, the hotel has also been the site of several unexplained phenomena. Guests have reported seeing strange lights, hearing disembodied voices, and feeling cold spots. Some have even claimed to have seen the ghosts of Mary and the murdered couple.

The hotel's haunted reputation has made it a popular destination for ghost hunters and paranormal enthusiasts. Many have conducted investigations at the hotel, hoping to capture evidence of the ghosts that are said to reside there.

One of the most famous ghost hunters to investigate the Hotel Excelsior Springs was Ed and Lorraine Warren, who were featured in the movie "The Conjuring." The Warrens conducted an investigation at the hotel in the 1970s and claimed to have witnessed several paranormal phenomena, including moving objects and disembodied voices.

The Hotel Excelsior Springs remains a popular destination for both tourists and ghost hunters alike. While some may dismiss the stories of ghosts as mere superstition, there is no denying the hotel's long and chilling history. Whether you believe in ghosts or not, a visit to the Hotel Excelsior Springs is sure to send a shiver down your spine.
