Early Life and Education

Marifran Korb was born on March 7, 1938, in New Orleans, Louisiana. Raised in a family that valued education and social responsibility, she developed a deep-seated passion for giving back to her community at a young age. After graduating from high school, Marifran pursued higher education at Smith College, where she earned a bachelor's degree in government. She then went on to obtain a master's degree in social work from Boston University, further solidifying her commitment to empowering the underserved.

Career in Social Justice

Marifran's professional career began in the field of social work, where she worked with underprivileged families and individuals. Her experiences exposed her to the systemic inequalities and challenges faced by marginalized communities, sparking a determination within her to make a meaningful difference. In 1979, she joined the National Organization for Women (NOW), a leading advocate for women's rights in the United States.

As a leader within NOW, Marifran played a pivotal role in several groundbreaking campaigns and initiatives. She fought tirelessly for the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA), which sought to guarantee equal rights for women under the Constitution. She also advocated for reproductive rights, economic justice, and fair representation of women in politics. Marifran's unwavering commitment to women's empowerment earned her widespread respect and recognition.

Philanthropic Endeavors

In addition to her work with NOW, Marifran also established herself as a dedicated philanthropist. In 1987, she founded the Marifran Charitable Foundation, a philanthropic organization dedicated to supporting organizations that empower women and girls. Through the foundation, Marifran has invested in a wide range of initiatives, including education, healthcare, and economic development.

One of the foundation's flagship programs is the Marifran Korb Women's Leadership Award, which recognizes and supports women who are making significant contributions to their communities. The award has been given to hundreds of women leaders around the world, empowering them to further their work and make a lasting impact.

Commitment to Global Education

Beyond her work in the United States, Marifran has also been a passionate advocate for global education. She firmly believes that access to quality education is a fundamental right for all children, regardless of their gender or socioeconomic status. Through her foundation, Marifran has supported numerous educational initiatives in developing countries.

In 2005, she established the Marifran Korb Foundation India Project, which aims to improve the lives of underprivileged children in India through education and healthcare. The project has built and supported schools, provided scholarships, and implemented community-based health programs, transforming the lives of countless young people.

Recognition and Legacy

Marifran Korb's remarkable contributions to philanthropy and women's rights have earned her numerous accolades and awards. In 2001, she was inducted into the National Women's Hall of Fame, recognizing her outstanding achievements and inspiring work. She has also received honorary doctorates from Smith College, Boston University, and the University of Massachusetts.

Marifran's legacy extends far beyond the organizations she has founded and the awards she has received. She has inspired countless individuals to embrace the power of philanthropy and work towards a more just and equitable world. Her unwavering commitment to empowering women and girls has left an enduring mark on society, continuing to resonate long after her passing.

Marifran Korb is a true visionary and trailblazer who has dedicated her life to creating a more equitable and just world for all. Through her tireless advocacy, philanthropic endeavors, and unwavering commitment to women's rights, she has made an immeasurable impact on countless lives. Marifran's legacy as a philanthropist and social activist stands as a testament to the transformative power of one person's determination to make a positive difference in the world.
